

Usability Test – Kevin (9-years-old)

The usability test was conducted by the 9-year-old Kevin. He was also explained the functionality and described what exactly our prototype is.

The following points were checked:

Testing the login page/registration:

- There are too many fields to fill out.
- Too much text on the 'Help' and 'Privacy' pages.
- Would rather have more images than text.
- Likes the background image.

Open the home page + test options in it:

- He understands the structure.
- It does not like the color purple.
- Too much text to read.

Open and operate your profile page:

- He finds large buttons better than small ones.
- Likes the color green.
- Likes all the pictures.
- He finds areas to scroll interesting.

Vote in a group:

- Too complicated to find.
- Too much text to read.
- Likes the GIF.
- Likes the buttons, easy to use.

Open a group chat:

- Did not know where to find it.
- Placed too complicated.
- Does not like the color of the chat. He prefers blue or green.
- Likes the profile pictures of other users.

Start private chat:

- Chat could not find it immediately (improve position better)!

- He likes the way the chat works.
- Does not like the color.

Testing the settings:

- Too many options in the settings.
- Use more pictures and videos.
- Likes the color blue in the settings.
- The buttons are too heavily colored (e.g. red).
- Too much text to read.
- Too many pages.

Testing the deletion of a profile:

- The button is much too red (difficult for children to read things).
- He likes the security prompts.
- Found the button 'delete'.
- Too much text to read.
- Prefers pictures or videos.

Opening and operating a friends list:

- Found the buttons and the page immediately.
- Finds it simply displayed.
- Likes the profile pictures and the bars.

Testing the log out:

- Does not find the button.
- He likes the color of the button.
- Finds the button in the main menu better.